I am forced to increase subscription rates to the OPISTHOBRANCH NEWSLETTER. The postal rates are due to rise again in the near future. Effective immediately, all foreign subscription rates will increase by five dollars per calendar year. U.S. and Canadian rates will remain the same. U.S. individual subscriptions will be $10.00 per year. U.S. institutional rates will be $12.50 per year. Foreign individual subscriptions will be $15.00 per year and foreign institutional subscriptions will be $17.50 per year. Back volmes will increase to $7.50 per volume. Microfiche will be $2.50 per volume and are available through the 1977 volume. Subscriptions and back volume requests should be made payable to Steven J. Long, 792 Laurie Avenue, Santa Clara, CA 95050, and be paid in U.S. funds.

ARTICLES:

ON THE IDEAL TECHNIQUE FOR CLASSIFYING OPISTHOBRANCHIA.

Eveline du Bois-Reymond Marcus.

Systematics is the basis for other work with animals: ecology, physiology, pharmacology must know the species they are dealing with. Empty shells are often not sufficiently characteristic to determine even the family they belong to. Specimens of any kind, if they do not fit into a previous description, should be treated as new and given a working name, so that later research can confirm their status or place them in a synonymy.

Collecting in the littoral zone: Turn stones: the photophobic slugs hide at daytime. Replace stones carefully to original position. Algae are observed, covered with water, in a flat dish, or in a bucket covered with a black cloth; many animals come the surface. In algae kept in the aquarium for some weeks, their inhabitants often grow rapidly. Sand and mud are sieved with a kitchen sieve with 1-1.5 mm meshes. The living animals are picked out, and also dead shells for observing the variation. Interstitial fauna creeps out of the sand heaped up on one side of an inclined dish filled with water to the lower border of the sand. One can also put anaesthetic into the water and whirl the animals out. The fauna of panels hung into the sea for some weeks or more, often includes opisthobranchs. Planktotonic species are collected with the plankton net. Diving and dredging are for species from deeper water. Note the substratum and food (Algae, hydroids, etc.)

Make a thorough description of the specimens not immediately recognized and a color photograph or drawing with colored pencils from the back and from the right side, with tentacles, rhinophores, gills, cerata, genital, and anal openings. The veins running to the heart are specific in some species of Elysia.

specimens should be measured alive and differences of size and shape in the population noted. Spawns should be measured, photographed or drawn, counted, and described.

For fixation the animals should be anaesthetized with Menthol crystals or magnesium chloride, or in the ice box. The right duration is difficult to test, as even if they do not react to touch, they generally contract in the fixative. Formalin is not recommended because it dissolves shells and spicules. Alcohol (80%) must be changed after an hour to avoid precipitation of the seawater.

Description: The shell is measured and drawn. Structure details may be photographed. Soft parts are extracted and drawn, folds or glands of the sole noted. Dissection begins on the LEFT side, as the genital organs lie more to the right. Slight staining with carmine when the animal is opened, makes the dissection easier. Blood glands, nervous system, buccal and salivary glands, pharynx and pouches are sketched. The pharyngeal bulb is dissolved in K OH to free jaws and radula (if present). Jaws and spines or platelets in the buccal cuticula, or solid plates should be noted. Radula: count the number of longitudinal and transverse rows of teeth and note their different shapes. Make drawings of single teeth, not SEM photographs of surface of radula only, in which one sees only the tips of the teeth. Esophagus sometimes with pouch or gizzard with plates. Stomach sometimes with plates or teeth. Contents of stomach. Entrances of digestive glands and their branching. Course of intestine relative to reproductive organs. Anal aperture.

Reproductive organs: position of ovotestis, ampulla, division of spermoviduct, sperm duct, prostatic gland, male organ: generally dissection is sufficient and clarifying to see papilla, stylet, spines. Oviduct, albumen, mucus glands, and outer oviduct. Vagina with or without separate outer opening. Spermatheca, spermatocyst. Reconstruction from serial sections is often necessary for the female duct. Transverse sections of 10-15 micrometers are sufficient, placing as many sections as possible on each slide.

For publicaton, drawings are preferable to photographs, except perhaps one photograph to prove that your drawings are true. In well known regions these details will not be necessary for recognizing species already found there. However, names of uncertain classification put into a list are of no use. For bibliography not available in your institute or museum library, Steve Long's collection of microfiche is a great help. -- Eveline Marcus, May 1979

RECOMMENDATION FOR UNIFYING THE DESCRIPTIONS OF DOTO OKEN, 1915

J. A. Ortea

The studies that we have done in the last two years on different species of Doto in the North of Spain have revealed that the animals are morphologically very variable, but that this variability follows an order. In order to establish correctly the identity of each species it is necessary to describe the different stages of development. The stages that in our idea must be studied are:

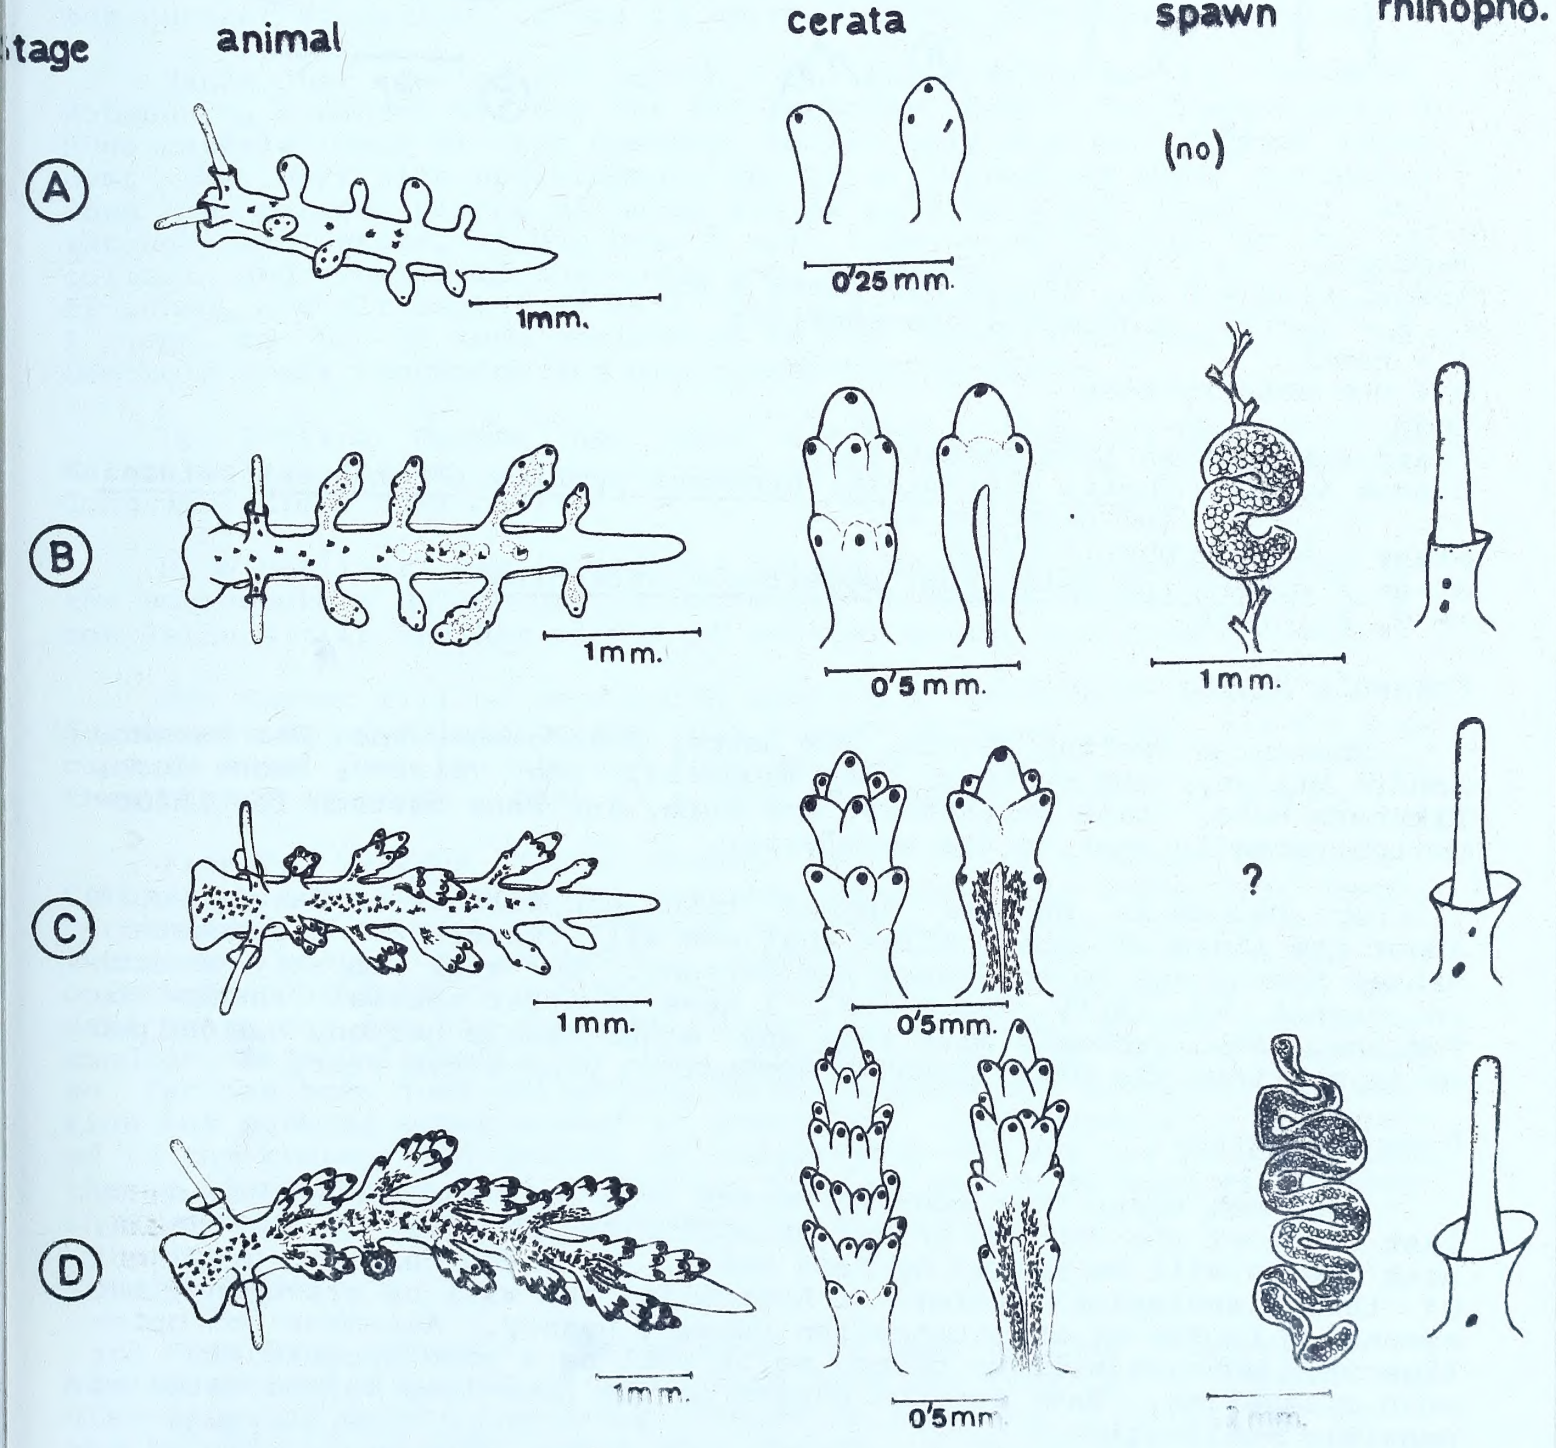
Stage A: Young, immature and poorly pigmented animals.

Stage B: Juvenile, first stages of maturity and reproductive activity, animals with an incipient pseudobranch (if exists) and moderately pigmented.

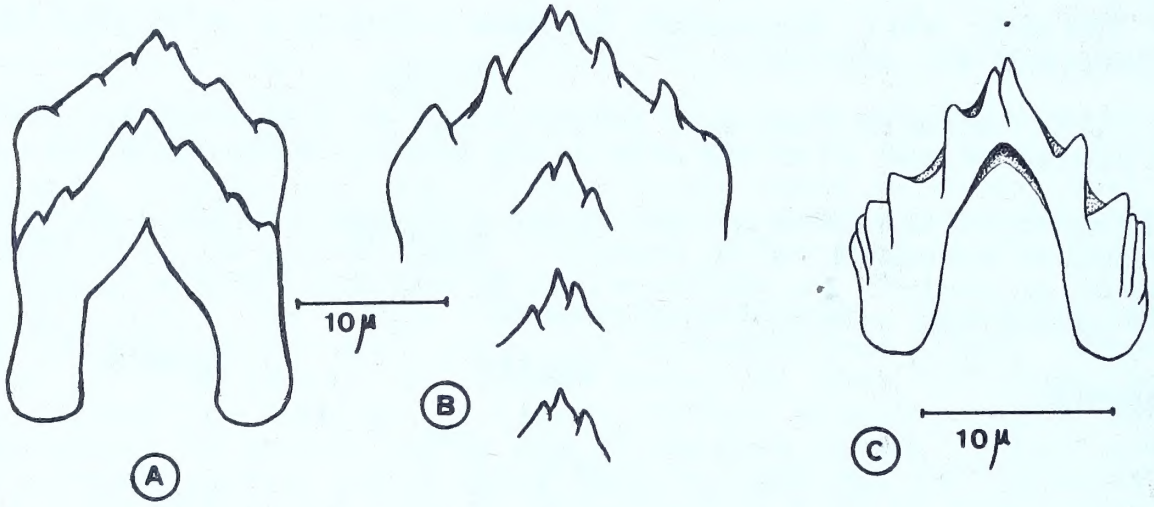
Stage C: Mature, well pigmented animals and with a well developed pseudobranch (if exists)

Stage D: Old, animals that have passed a winter (generally). Richly pigmented and of a big size. Big pseudobranch (if exists).

As a complement of the description: Spawn & Radula studied with detail in the possible stages prior to stage C. Food: Generally the same in stages (A-B) or (A-B-C) and different in C-D or D. The bigger the animals the harder the hydroids they feed on.



Graphic redescription of Doto coronata (Gmelin, 1791)
Note: the number of pairs of cerata varies from 4 (stage A,B) to 8 or 9(?). Stage D, very old specimen



Radula
Animal size = 6 mm. (Stage D); Teeth = 65
A, B = Optical microscope observations
A = teeth
C = SEM obseervation
Food
(very variable in this species)
Stages A,B,C = Obelia geniculata, Dynamena pumilla, Plumularia setacea and Laomedea sp.
Stage C = Aglaophenia pluma
Stage D = Halecium halecinum, Nemertesia antennina
-- J. A. Ortea

EDITOR'S NOTES:

Thanks to Eveline Marcus, Jim Lance, Joandomenec Ros, Wes Farmer, Sandra Millen, Dave Behrens, Gary McDonald, Ron Velarde, Hanne Just, Kikutaro Baba, Irene Roginskaya, Bob Burn, and Hans Bertsch for information recently sent to the newsletter.

Dr. Marcus is on her annual trip and will be in Canada until about the ninth of June. After that she will travel to northeastern United States and on to France and Germany. She will probably be back in Brazil by early September. I have to offer special thanks to Eveline. She, probably more than any other single person, has helped me to continue the OPISTHOBRANCH NEWSLETTER year after year.

PERSONAL NOTES:

From Bob Burn: "Not much to report from this end--am workin on my last issue of the JOURNAL OF THE MALACOLOGICAL SOCIETY OF AUSTRALIA, next issue will be edited by Fred Wells. I am the current president of the Malacological Society of Australia, and will be attending the symposium in May at the Australian Museum, Sydney. A number of opisthobranch workers will be there, so it will be a good opportunity for much discussion. Have several papers in the pipe-line but no dates of possible publication."

Dr. & Mrs. Harald Rehder were in Brazil with Eveline Marcus early this year. According to Eveline the tides were not favorable for collecting.

Jim Lance wrote on 20 May: "Had four fast days at Bahia de Los Angeles a couple of weeks ago--unprecedented collecting during which time we managed 41 species--all returned alive--the Gulf was a lake (no wind)--most of the time was spent on the islands--hard to find a rock which didn't have a 'branch on the underside. The Sargassum fringes were alive with localized populations of aeolids and polyceridids including all four species of Farmer's nembrothids. Of course, flew: don't even think of taking the Baja road, at least for the present. Last winter's floods washed out all bridges and made the road a mass of potholes. Cursing humans with broken axles, flipped trailers and boats who finally limped into the Bahia attest to my evaluaton of the current situation. There is no road repair whatsoever going on."

Hanne Just (Zoologisk Museum, Universitetsparken 15, DK 2100, Kobenhavn, Danmark) writes: "As you probably know, Dr. Lemche left a huge material here at this museum. As his only student I have taken over the work with nudibranchs, but as all his notes were scribbled down on various pieces of paper and as only he could find his way through the store, it has been a very time consuming job for me to collect and rearrange the notes and the store. Now I have nearly finished, and although I am left with many problems and 'loose ends' I hope to be of some assistance to the nudibranch world so Dr. Lemche's great knowledge and experience can be shared."

Dr. Eveline Marcus has been elected an Honorary Member of the Malacological Society of London--the fifth person to be so honored! Congratulations Eveline!!!

Dave Mulliner was in Arizona during April and gave a program for the Southwestern Malacological Society. He showed slides of the Solomon Islands trip and has slides of several exotic nudibranch species.

Wes Farmer will be sending 50 species of nudibranch models to the joint meeting of Malacologists this August in Texas. Wes has 60 species in model form to date and they are really great. I have two of them that I treasure. Each is a hand made model encased in resin.

From Ron Velarde (1063 Roswell Ave. #7, Long Beach, CA 90804): Currently, I am working on my masters degree at Cal State Long Beach. My thesis work is with polychaetes and not opisthobranchs (as no opisthobranch person is at CSULB). However, I have made collections of opisthobranchs (mostly nudibranchs) from southern California for several years and for the past two summers in the area around Puerta Escondido, Baja California del Sur. Almost all of the work I have done so far has been just collecting opisthobranchs for reference collection but nothing experimental or otherwise. I am especially interested in the biology and ecology of nudibranchs and may try to work along these lines for my Ph.D.. (If you know of any professors with openings, please let them and me know!)

READER FORUM:

From Gary McDonald: "A comment on Dave Behrens' suggestion: I have discussed a number of times with Dave the idea of a 'forum' for discussion of recent taxonomic changes in the O.N. I think the use of the term 'opinion poll' was a poor choice. I think what Dave had in mind was a listing or compendium of recent nomenclatorial and taxonomic changes and a discussion of the pros and cons, rather than an 'opinion poll' of how many workers prefer a certain name or change. Certainly a listing of recent changes and the bibliographic citations for them would be useful to most workers in the field.

Another comment on the O.N.: It would be extremely useful to me, and I am sure to others, if the citations in the O.N. indicated whether they deal with nudibranchs, sacoglossans, pteropods, anaspids, notaspids, cephalaspids, etc. I realize that doing so would certainly increase the amount of effort involved in preparing the O.N., but as it stands now, there are many citations in the O.N. that I don't know whether they mention or discuss the groups in which I am interesed." [editor's note: I often do not have the information. I am interested in further comments on this subject. If you folks will get me the information you will be suprized at the amount that will improve the ON. I have a home computer/word processing system now that will make many things possible. My basic philosopy has remained unchanged since issue one of the OPISTHOBRANCH NEWSLETTER--I see myself as a facilitator for all of you who work in the field. I don't think there is anyone who has failed to receive back much value for every bit of support they gave to the ON. Take a little time and send in your subscription and information! Tell everyone who is even marginally interested in opisthobranchs about the ON. I have been publishing for over ten years and still find people who have never heard of the ON.]

Dr. Joandomenec Ros writes that he agrees with Dave Behrens' proposal for discussing nomenclatural changes in the O.N.

From Eveline Marcus: "Carlton's discussion of the changing names is really a problem. As many old descriptions don't give the now-necessary characters, it is impossible to recognize, who's who. And the lists are quite hopeless. I think, it is in many cases better to give a good description and a new name, that may later be a synonym than to use the old names, as, e.g., Baba first did with Elysia viridis. That physiologists and the like must in the course of time accept the new names is inevitable. Nor do we use the good old names, Linneus or Cuvier gave. The Ascoglossa and Sacoglossa have equal rights, but the Sacoglossa are half Latin and half Greek, hence not desirable. Authors often misspell them 'Saccoglossa' but after some time I hope the Ascoglossa will win."

RECENT NOMENCLATURAL CHANGES:

INFORMATION WANTED:

From Sandra Millen (Department of Zoology, University of British Columbia, 2075 Westbrook Place, Vancouver, B.C., Canada): "I have been working on some new species and would appreciate any specimens, photos or records your readers might have of the following: Aldisa sp. (I have a green one ?zetlandica and a white one ?alabastrina), Adalaria sp., Onchidoris sp. (excluding O. bilamellata), ?Anisodoris (a large--25 cm white dorid frequently with pale brown, blotchy 'freckles', 6 tri or quada-pinnate plumes; low, small, rounded tubercles, digitiform tentacles, etc.... The unusual thing about it is an armed penis like Sebadoris. I would be glad to exchange material with anyone who wishes to work on species available in B.C. I have moved from a wet suit to a dry suit at last so I expect to do a lot more collecting this year."

Does anyone have an up-to-date address for Anne Hurst? I heard that she is still at Gatty Marine Labs. and that her name is now d'Espremeuil but letters to that address have gone unanswered for several years. Send information to the editor.

Two questions from Dave Behrens: "Who is working on the problems associated with the Dendrodoridae, and its many associated synonymys? Are you aware of an all white dendrodorid with purple branchial plume and rhinophores? It's deep water." [The latter sounds like Acanthodoris nanaimoensis to the editor]

CURRENT EVENTS:

The Western Society of Malacologists will be making a student research grant of $500 again this year to an undergraduate or graduate student for the academic year 1979-1980.

A 'Symposium on the Life Histories of Mollusks' will be held at the joint meeting of the Western Society of Malacologists and the American Malacological Union in Corpus Christi, Texas, 5-11 August 1979. Further information and a Call for Papers is available from: David R. Lindberg, University of California, Santa Cruz, CA 95064.

NUMERIC INDEX TO OPISTHOBRANCH CITATIONS:

This list complements the Alphabetical Index published in June of last year. It is complete through May 1978. There are numerous errors in the list but it should be valuable. Numbers from 1 to about 2500 refer to Dr. Henry Russell's INDEX NUDIBRANCHIA.

PERSONAL NOTES

Jim Lance visited with Wes Farmer,in Tempe, Arizona on the 28th and 29th of June.
From Robert Burn: "The molluscan symposium in Sydney in May was most successful and enjoyed greatly by all participants. It was good to meet Jim McLean from over your way. Opisthobranch people were there in force: Michael Miller and Richard Willan from New Zealand, Philippe Bouchet from army service in New Caledonia, Patricia Morse on her way home from Fiji and feeling poorly, Bill Rudman and Ian Loch from the Australian Museum, Ross Hinde and Bob Rose from Sydney University, Judith Hunter and Neville Coleman from Sydney, Robin Stobbs from South Africa, Fred Wells from Western Australia Museum, and myself. Six opisthobranch papers were presented at the Symposium, and several of us managed to find time for an informal evening of slides. On the mid-symposium break, Richard Willan and I collected for opisthobranchs on the sandy southern shore of Botany Bay, a few miles south of Sydney. We managed to find eleven species, including a number of Gastropteron bicornutum Baba & Tokioka which proved to be most active swimmers." -- R. BURN

EDITOR'S NOTES:

Thanks to the following people for information in this issue of the ON: Dr. Eveline Marcus, Dr. I.S. Roginskaya, Dr. Hans Bertsch, J.A. Ortea, Dr. David Behrens, Robert Burn, and James Lance.
My correspondence is still behind and I must apologize for the delays I have made answering several requests for literature and subscriptions. I have spent so much time in the past four or five months working with computers and learning my new job at Zytron that I have had time for little else. In the long run it should be very worthwhile as I will eventually have a text editing system which will be able to do some fantastic indexing for the Opisthobranchs.
